

Biography - Dr. Chris Littlewood

Dr Chris Littlewood is a UK based physiotherapist. He has extensive experience of working in the UK NHS and private sector and is currently employed as a Senior Lecturer in Clinical Trials at Keele University, UK.

Chris undertook a PhD relating to the assessment and management of rotator cuff tendinopathy. He has also undertaken further post-graduate clinical training as well as a Master's Degree in Health Services Research and a Postgraduate certificate in Learning & Teaching in Higher Education. His current research interests include management of rotator cuff tears, and rehabilitation following rotator cuff repair

Chris has lectured and facilitated courses across the UK, Europe, USA and Australia and has published widely in the field of musculoskeletal disorders.